THE AMBIGUOUS ADVERTIS-MENT.

In the palmy days of the Saturday Review there appeared an article making lengthy fun of a piano advertised in the Times as the property of a lady leaving England in remarkably elegant case on carved supports." The adventurous lady was compared to Arion on his dolphin, to the Wise Men of Gotham in their bowl, to Helle on her ram and Europa un her bull ; and in short to all the cases of singular travel that the author's memory could furnish. The delightful Jumblies of Mr Lear, who went to sea in a sieve, they did," were not included, probably, because, like the Spanish Armada in Sheridan's burlesque, they were not then in sight. Too often we pass over these things without particular notice. Our appetite soon gets. jaded and, as an American writer puts it, 'in hastily rouning your eye over the papers you rarely pause to give its due meed of surprise to the appetite of a lady who wants to take a gentleman for breakfast and dinner,' the benevolence of a boarding-house keeper who advertises that 'single gentlemen are furnished with pleasant rooms ; also one or two gentlemen with wives, or the audacity of a merchant who, in a free country, openly gives notice Wanted, a woman to sell on commission," 1402 But, indeed, anything is possible in an age. where the sign 'Families supplied by the quart or gallon, meets you at every turn. It is not only the private advertiser who thus adds to the gainty of nations. Collective wisdom is often as ambiguous as the 338 single mind. Every one has heard of the Itish railway on which a large sign was erected at one narrow part of the line, to the effect that . When two trains meet here, they must at once come to a stand-still until they have passed each other, ' Less' familiar, perhaps is the case of the public baths in Paris. This useful institution at first bore the sign, Bainds a fond de bois pour dames a quater sous. ' Critics objecteded to this, on the ground that it strictly meant 'wooden-bettomed baths for twopenny ladies. So the proprietor altered his sign to 'Bains a quatre sous pour dames a fond de bois. ' But the critics hileriously contended that this inversion made the ambiguity (as Johnson would say) even more fundamental. Perhaps the most striking of all instances of the difficulty of avoiding ambiguity when one endeavours (like the thrifty advertiser) to be laconic is to be seen in the history of post-cards. At least a dozen attempts have been mademostly in our own language-to express the simple proposition that the message on a postcard must be confined to one side. Even yet the problem is not wholly solved. Our own former inscription. The address only to be written on this side,' was held to har the use of a typewriter or a printing-press, which was not at all the intention of the Post Office. The only has now been dropped, in defence to a colonial precedent, and there is no direct prohibition against carrying the letter over to the face of the postcard; yet the correspondent who tries that plan will hardly be blessed by the recipient who is fined a penny. The United States had no fewer than six shots before they could satisfy themselves in this apparently simple matter. On their early postcards they inscribed. Nothing but the address can be placed on this side, which was neither true nor elegant. Nothing but the address to be on his struggle to be original, and simply adapted the French amnouncement into

ment. Finally, Brother Jonathan gave up

than this, the mere private advertiser may take heart; and after all, is any one ever misled by these umbiguous advertisements?

SHANGHAI TENNIS CHAMPION-SHIP.

A large number of people, including many ladies, assembled on the Recreation Club ground yesterday evening (says the N.-C. Della News of the 8th inst.) to: witness the match between N. B. Ramsay 1.* (holder) and C. Biron (challenger) for the] Challenge Cap and Lawn Tennia Championship of Shanghai. It was probably the largest gathering of spectators that has been seen at a tennis match in Shanghai. It was the general opinion that Ramsay would retain the Cup and title, and the result bore out this view. In the first sett, Ramsay seemed very much off colour, and l Biron bbrained three games out of the first four. Then Ramsay improved; and, is though serving badly, scored many points ; by accurate placing, and ran out the winner by 7.5 (010010110111). In the second sett, Ramsay's service did not improve, but his placing was excellent, and he won five games right of the reel. Biron, however, improved considerably and took the next two games. The eighth game of this sett was splendidly contested. Dence and vantage were being called continually, but although Biron seemed to have the game in his hands at one time, Ramsay won and thus secured the second sett by 6.2 (11111001). In the third seat Biron seemed fagged, but some of the games were very exciting in spite of the fact that Ramsay won the sets by 6-2 (11010111). It was evident that Ramsay was not in his boa form, and although he won the rabber easily, the score does not live a proper, idea of how closely some of the garden were, contested. Rameay's placing was | Wiveen brillient, and Biron played as very good Woodcock game, but lost several points by attempting | Woodkerk smashing volleys where easier strokes might \

Yesterday, only one case of plague was reported in this Colony, that of a Chinese who died on the ground floor of No. 10, Trying Street. The week's returns showed an improvement as compared with previous weeks, and it may now be safely said that the disease will rapidly become nor est for another season. The Coronation Honours.

We are somewhat surprised (says the Kobe Chronicle) that in connection with the list of Coronation honours and decorations, nothing is yet mentioned as to the Legation at Tokyo being made an Embassy. It might have been thought that on the first great national occasion since the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was concluded, the British Government would have seized the opportunity to increase the status of its representation in Japan. It was very generally believed, also, that notwithstanding the recent decoration of Sir Claude MacDonald, some additional mark of recognition would have been bestowed on the Minister who brought the alliance about. The British Government, however. is very slow to move, and it will perhaps wait until some other Power raises it's representation at Tokyo to an Embassy before waking up to the necessity of the step. It is perhaps even more remarkable that in London the Japanese Minister, a representative of the only Power with which Great Britain is in alliance, should be of less rank than the representatives of other Powers. The result is that should the Japanese Ministor be waiting audience at the Fereign office, an Ambassador who may arrive after him would take precedence in obtaining an interview, notwithstanding the relations into which Great Britain has entered with Japan. It seems curious that such an arrangement should be allowed to remain in force for an hour.

It has now been discovered that Shakespeare wrote the Psalms usually as cribed to King David. Cut the final ' from the poet's name-ne one cared how it was spelt in the old days. Thus you get 4 and 6-four vowels and six consonants. Turn up the 46th Psalm, count 46 words from the beginning, and you come to the word 'Shake," Count 46 words from the end, and you have 'Spear.' LONDON LETTER.

(From Our Own Correspondent).

LONDON, JUNE 13: The Right Hon, Joseph Chamberlain was jubilant, and justly so, on Wednesday, at the Corona Club dinner in the Hotel Cecil. If the measure of a man's services to his country is to be found in his popularity with his fellow citizens and in the virulence with which he is hated by the enemies of his nation, Mr Chamberlain need fear no rivalty. He told the Club that he has now been Colonial Secretary for a longer period than any man since the time of Lord Bathurst, who held the two portfolios of the Colonies and the War Office from 1812 to 1827. The reminder is approprinte, for Bathurst also, ninety years ago, had his war, with similar vicissitudes and of much the same duration, but with fur less satisfactory results.
